

Council for Museum Anthropology
Treasurer's Report
11/13/19

Membership

At the end of June, 2019 (the most recent count available), CMA's membership totaled 274 (192 professional, 80 student, 2 life members), an increase of 14% from June of the previous year.

CMA Membership
10/2011	374
9/2012	347
9/2013	337
9/2014	296
9/2015	345
9/2016	289
9/2017	282
9/2018	245
6/2019	274

General Finances

As of 10/31/19 Net Assets were $86,592.40, an increase of more than $11,500 from the end of 2018. This does not account for funds spent later in the year (primarily for the Annual Meeting activities budgeted at $4,000). Mid-year the Ames/Distinguished Service quasi-endowment was worth $11,888.39 (up $234.89 from last year) and the Student Travel Award quasi-endowment was worth $27,949.84 (up $552.23 from last year). These two quasi-endowments do not presently meet our award needs as we annually give out $1,000 for the two student travel awards plus $500 for our new CMA book award. I recommend creating a distinct account to fund the CMA book award.

Museum Anthropology Journal

The editorial budget for Museum Anthropology in 2019 continued to be modest at $11,316. Under Lea McChesney's editorship, the University of New Mexico provided fantastic institutional support for the journal (budgeted to be worth $38,730 in 2019). To support our incoming co-editors Emily W. Stokes-Rees (Syracuse University) and Phaedra Livingstone (Centennial College, Toronto) the board voted to increase the Museum Anthropology editorial budget to $15,420 in 2020. There still remains $1,333 left in the Museum Anthropology 2019 budget.

CMA Biennial Conference "Museums Different" in Santa Fe, NM, September 19-21, 2019

Revenues were $80,083 (from registration ($16,985), sponsoring institutions ($11,300), CMA contribution ($10,000) and NMAI ($41,798.26)) and expenditures were $76,094. There were 158 registrants with 52 Indigenous participant registrations, travel and accommodation scholarships, and 13 student registration scholarships.

--Respectfully submitted by Jennifer Kramer, CMA Treasurer